Fund manager's report

Source : Groupama AM

Global equity markets rose across the board in May, buoyed by a temporary easing of geopolitical tensions and sustained capital expenditure in the technology sectors. This upward trend persisted despite a less favourable environment, characterised by rising interest rates, and even as the wider conflict involving Iran remained fundamentally unresolved. The market gains were mainly driven by Japanese and Asian equities, as well as the US technology sector, which outperformed the major global indices throughout the month (S&P 500 +5.3%, Nasdaq +8.4%, Russell 2000 +4.4%, Eurostoxx 50 +3.9%, Stoxx 600 +3.0%, Nikkei +11.9%, MSCI Asia ex-Japan +11.3%). Meanwhile, US 10-year government bond yields peaked at nearly 4.7% before falling back to 4.4%, compared with a low of less than 4.0% at the end of February (3.94% on 27 February). In Europe, the German Bund rose to 3.2% before stabilising slightly below 3% at the end of the period. In the commodity market, Brent crude fell to $92, while gold fell by 1% to settle at $4,540 at the end of the month. The US dollar remained broadly stable, closing at $1.17. The fund underperformed its benchmark over the period. Against a backdrop of high long-term interest rates and a strong focus on the memory theme, the portfolio's main sectoral overweight positions proved to be a drag, particularly in utilities, raw materials and industrials. Furthermore, the underweighting of the technology sector and the limited exposure to the memory manufacturing sector weighed on performance. In terms of individual stocks, certain convictions made a positive contribution to performance, such as TDK (electronic components, +40.5% in EUR), Infineon (semiconductors, +42.0% in EUR) and Prysmian (cables, +15.7% in EUR). Conversely, the portfolio's main positions had a negative impact on performance over the month, particularly GE Vernova (gas turbines, -10.2% in EUR), Siemens Energy (-9.6% in EUR) and Baker Hughes (-7.5% in EUR). The absence of memory technology company Micron Technology (+88.7% in EUR) from the portfolio also weighed on relative performance. There were no changes to the portfolio during the month.
